Some Words of Wisdom from Coach Ingle

By: John Hutcheson

Rotarian Derek Waugh introduced Dalton State College Head Basketball Coach Tony Ingle, who came to DSC in 2012 to restart a previously distinguished basketball program which had been dormant since the late 1970's. In his first two years at DSC, Coach Ingle became the first coach in NCAA or NAIA history to lead a new program to more than fifty victories in its first two seasons, as well as the first to win a national championship in a program's first year of eligibility. He was recognized as NAIA Coach of the Year for 2014-2015, but Derek simply called him "the Wizard of Whitfield County."

Coach Ingle began his remarks with a tribute to Derek as Director of Athletics at DSC, calling the opportunity to work with him "a blessing." He gave a moving remembrance of his parents, especially his mother, and he elaborated on how the lessons he learned from them have shaped his philosophy as a coach. Along with the virtues of hard work, they taught him that "life is short, serious, and frail, and we must laugh at it and live it well." All things can be blessings, so long as we are grounded in a faith that can move mountains and remember that God can do anything. Recalling Jesus's parable of the mustard seed, Coach Ingle passed around a jar of mustard seeds, pointing out that he takes one every day to remind himself of the importance of faith. He told a story about Mother Theresa, whom a group of nuns once praised for the love she showed in her work among the outcasts of India. She responded by telling them that while love was certainly important in life, faith was even more so, enabling one to find answers in the heart for life's problems. "Fear" can be seen as an acronym for "False Evidence Appearing Real," and we must always bear in mind that God wants us to live in faith.

Coach Ingle's mother told him, "Don't let anyone be-nice you," and he has always tried to remember that while it's nice to be important, it's important to be nice. DSC's 2015-2016 team lost eight seniors, five starters, and two All-Americans from last year's squad, but they are working hard and improving. In a culture where instant gratification has become the normal expectation, Coach Ingle teaches his players to be humble, with faith in God, belief in themselves, and a recognition that the key to success is gratitude. At the same time, they must also be hungry in the courageous pursuit of worthy goals and also be helpful, with a spirit to serve. Finally, they are to learn to love learning, which will enable them to remain happy to the end.
